Qualifications of ministry leaders

General qualifications for appointment and service as a ministry leader (referred to in Scripture as a deacon) are noted in 1 Timothy 3:8-13. Specific qualifications and responsibilities include spiritual maturity; willingness and availability to serve; GCI membership in good standing (which involves consistency in attendance, giving and serving); and recognized leadership ability; spiritual giftedness and skill (or willingness to learn) in the area(s) of anticipated service. Those commissioned as ministry leaders will normally have served well for a time as ministry workers within the congregation where their ability and desire to lead is tested and confirmed.
